

Side Door Latches

In any double-door setup, one door always secures the other door closed. This main door will be labeled with a lock symbol. To release the latch, apply pressure to the door handle with the palm of your hand, press the button with your thumb, then pull the handle toward you. As soon as you swing the door open slightly, close the handle back so you do not damage the vinyl. Swing the door open, and place the holdback arm into the keeper.

To close the side door, take the door holdback out of the keeper. Release the latch on the door handle, then close the door and push the handle back into the pocket to secure the door.

If the door seems difficult to close, make sure the door with the lock symbol is being closed last, which will secure the first door and ensure the door is properly latching at the top and bottom of the door
